Troubleshooting :

Lost heart rate signal

The JETE Smartwatch measures your heart rate during exercise and in your daily life. Sometimes the smartwatch signal can be inaccurate. If this happens, the lost heart rate data will appear as dotted lines.

If you are unable to use the heart rate signal, first, make sure you are wearing the smartwatch correctly, avoid positioning it too high or too low, and do not wear it too tight or too loose on your arm. After adjusting, tap the heart rate icon to collect data. If there is still no heart rate data, check the heart rate function in the application to make sure it is active.

Other Issues :

If your phone cannot connect to the smartwatch, click the Bluetooth settings on your phone and check if there is a JETE smartwatch signal. If there is, it means there is no problem with the Bluetooth signal. Please check that the smartwatch might be connected to another phone, please disconnect and immediately proceed with pairing. iOS users must click Settings > Bluetooth > Forget this device and connect.

Attention/Warning :

1. The JETE Smartwatch data for Heart Rate, Blood Oxygen, cannot be used as a benchmark for diagnosis.
2. Self-diagnosis and self-treatment are dangerous. Only people who are experts in their field can diagnose heart disease and others. Please contact a doctor for further diagnosis.
3. Heart rate data, and others from the JETE Smartwatch, are not entirely accurate due to several factors such as external and environmental interference, incorrect wearing, and the user's physical condition.
4. DO NOT administer medication and treatment based on the information provided by the JETE Smartwatch, and you must follow a doctor's advice. And we are not responsible for the inaccuracy of the data and the consequences that result.
